Dr.Satit Rungkasiri stated that “The Revenue Department held the event because we wish to take part in a campaign for giving and sharing in the society. We encouraged youths and the general public to express their giving and sharing in their own way through their photographs and paintings by holding the art competition and exhibition. Each and every piece is praiseworthy. Some express happiness-giving and love-sharing. Others show generosity among fellow men. Even though the event was held during the national flood disaster period, there was still a large number of quality pieces of art submitted. On this occasion, I would like to congratulate all the winners of this competition.”

The art exhibition is open to public from today until 13 January 2012 (during the Revenue Department office hours) in the hall on the 1st floor of The Revenue Department Building (90 Soi Phaholyothin 7, Phaholyothin Road, Bangkok 10400).
